Celebrating Girls Being Girls

Leslie Bush, BC Provincial Commissioner

Celebrating girls being girls is the theme for this year's Annual General Meeting. Girls being girls honours the commitment of all our members to encourage girl members through activities and experiences to be everything they want to be. This theme was chosen, in part, because of a video produced and developed by a BC Girl Guide in which she explained how Girl Guides has allowed her to be all she can be. She used the unicorn as a whimsical symbol of individualism. You might have seen it at the Girls First Launch Party in September or as our New Year's greeting in January.

In BC we continue to make conservative but steady increases in our membership. This year we welcomed 212 new girl members and 36 new adult members to experience Guiding, a 1.6% increase overall.

Our new Guide House provides a bright and vibrant space for girls to be girls! Since we opened the doors the building has been a busy location for meetings, trainings, sleepovers and girl experiences. As one of the staff commented, there is a bright "vibe" to the building; it is a welcoming and friendly space for our members to come to.

This year, whether girls chose to explore travel, challenge themselves through adventures, increase their awareness of social responsibility through service locally or globally or took steps to make a difference in our world through learning about different cultures or by helping to preserve our environment, they were girls being girls.

Here are just some examples of girls being girls because of Guiding.

Girls Being Girls Globally

- ★ Girls travelled—boy, did they travel! Girls visited Japan, Africa, Europe and Mexico.
- ★ They also experienced the world while staying at home through internationally themed Thinking Day events and the BC-sponsored Colours of the World, where participants experienced the multicultural side of the Lower Mainland.

Girls Being Girls through Service to Others and Our Environment

- ★ Girls volunteered at local Canada Day celebrations.
- ★ They honoured active members and veterans of our Armed Forces by making holiday cards for members stationed overseas and attending Remembrance Day and other ceremonies remembering our veterans' service in conflicts overseas.
- ★ They supported our seniors by visiting care homes for fun, friendship and singalongs, making tray favours for Meals on Wheels, local hospitals and care homes, and joining a group of seniors taking in a holiday light tour.
- ★ They gained awareness of those with less by carrying out pyjama and sock drives and by making ready-to-use birthday in a bag kits for food banks and transition homes, to provide an instant birthday celebration for kids. They made and distributed hygiene kits in purses for women in shelters or without homes and also participated in Hike for Hunger food drives, and they made and/or filled holiday hampers at Christmas Bureaus.
- ★ They helped to make our world better by planting trees, removing invasive plants from community parks and participating in annual shoreline and community cleanup events.
- ★ Girls took direct action by learning about recycling and by volunteering at the SPCA.

Girls Being Girls through Learning

- ★ Girls experienced STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) through attending Science Games at Simon Fraser University and LEGO Robotic Workshops.

- ★ They learned about work and life opportunities through presentations by women working in engineering, search and rescue, medicine and public health.
- ★ GUEST (Guides Exploring Science and Technology) was held for the first time in two locations: Northern BC and, for the first time, the Lower Mainland.
- ★ Girls learned practical skills they can use immediately through age-appropriate FoodSafe and first aid courses, and they talked about money and budgeting with a financial planner.

Girls Being Girls through Experiences, Events and Adventures

- ★ Girls got to just be girls while experiencing BC-sponsored summer adventures like Pathfinder Paddles, a canoe adventure held at Murtle Lake, in Wells Grey Park; a Mt. Assiniboine backpacking adventure for Rangers; Roam: Follow the Gold Rush; and Trex Rendezvous.
- ★ They made new friends at Pathfinder Summit, Amazing Arts Again and More Seaside Fun, and they learned camping skills at Guide Jubilee and Let's Camp S'more; these, as well as West Coast Area's Holiday camp and Fraser Skies Area's Rally in the Valley, were girl-powered events extraordinaire!
- ★ BC Council partnered with the Vancouver Canucks to hold an amazing Girl Guides at the Canucks Day and a sleepover at the BC Hall of Fame.
- ★ Sleepovers at the H.R. MacMillan Space Centre and Vancouver Aquarium are always popular learning and friendship events.
- ★ At the unit and district levels, girls got to be girls at teas and balls, Spark sprees and revelramas, a Pathfinder fall frolic, a Ranger urban adventure and Iron Chef events! And some got to explore the mysteries in Gastown.
- ★ I can imagine how girls felt trying active life skills like yoga and Zumba, learning self-defence moves and going cross-country skiing, tubing and horseback riding!

★ They also learned skills in Salish Weaving and in painting through unit-based workshops.

- ★ West Coast Area girls attended Planes Trains and Automobiles, a transportation-themed day at the BC Institute of Technology's aerospace campus.

And girls can't be girls without Guiders being Guiders!

Guiders Being Guiders and Growing Skills!

- ★ Over 200 Guiders and presenters attended the BC Guiders' Conference in Richmond.
- ★ Fifty-six Girls First Champions and I attended Girls First training in Edmonton, learning about girl-driven programming. The Champions have in turn spread that knowledge to unit Guiders across the province and will continue to deliver this training through 2019.
- ★ Guiders participated in a variety of training opportunities, including financial, FoodSafe and first aid sessions to build their skills.
- ★ Adviser- and committee-based workshops, area commissioner/district commissioner workshops and specialized skills training like Dynamic Presentations built knowledge and skills across our organization.
- ★ OAL (Outdoor Activity Leadership) Adventure trainings prepared our leaders to provide opportunities for girls to challenge themselves. This year, flexibility and change were the bywords for these events; challenged by Mother Nature, Guiders adapted!

This is but a small sampling of the myriad of opportunities our members have experienced this past year. Girls being girls, showing compassion for others and excitement to learn, having fun with other girls and challenging themselves physically and mentally, in a safe, all-female organization led by women who want girls to be everything they want to be.

Like girls in the Cyndi Lauper song, Guiding members in BC "just want to have fun." No matter their ages, they are at heart girls being girls!
